ADMINISTRATION

Partners in Progress

Operating the second largest school district in Oregon is big business, and big business requires leadership and drive. That is what the administrators and school board members of Eugene School District No. 4 displayed during the year.

These men supervised a budget of $11,720,549.00 and the operation of 29 elementary schools, seven junior high schools, three senior high schools, a vocational school, and the Children's Hospital School, with a combined enrollment of 19,260 students. Personnel included 974 faculty members and 531 other employees. Added to their responsibilities were two new junior high schools opening in the fall of 1965, and plans for a fourth senior high school scheduled to open in 1966. A new duty was to serve in an advisory capacity in the establishment of Lane County's new Community College in Eugene.

Striving to promote educational opportunities for every individual proved to be a time-consuming but rewarding job for the four administrators and the five non-salaried school board members.

Principal Clifford Moffitt

Mr. Moffitt, second vice-president of PTA, discusses the comic and serious aspects of graduation at annual senior dessert for parents. At right is Archie Zarewski, PTA president.

South Eugene has gained the reputation of being academically and athletically one of the outstanding high schools in the state, and no one deserves more credit for this reputation than the school's dedicated principal, Mr. Clifford Moffitt.

In his sixth year at South Eugene, Mr. Moffitt, who has also served as president of the Lane County chapter of the Red Cross, has supported every school function from rally dances to concerts with genuine interest and enthusiasm, setting a worthy example for all Axemen.

Constantly striving to improve curriculum and teaching methods, Mr. Moffitt still finds time to listen to the innumerable problems, large and small, of over 1800 students and teachers. Always good-natured, helpful, and fair, he is an understanding friend with a sincere feeling for people, taking pride in every accomplishment in any way connected with the school. His faith in young people gives students the courage to have faith in themselves.

the Show

Invaluable services at South Eugene were performed daily by the vice-principals and counselors. Students could be seen waiting to confer with one of the administrators at any hour of the day.

Emory Bruns, administrative vice-principal, capably coordinated many vital aspects of school management. Attendance, with reports to the Oregon State Department of Higher Education, and student discipline consumed the greater part of his time. Responsible for many important "details" at South, Mr. Bruns was constantly alert to the problems of bus transportation, parking and traffic, and fire drills.

Constantly in demand as dean of girls and adviser to Girls' League was vice-principal Miss Nina Kitts. While assisting in the guidance of students from the junior highs through graduation, Miss Kitts was a special friend to seniors faced with the complexities of college and scholarship applications. As school social adviser, she allotted room spaces for meetings and maintained the year's activity calendar.

Such services as counseling, records, testing, and IBM processing kept vice-principal Paul Potter busy all year. He was further responsible for admission and withdrawal procedures, and for the supervision of graduation exercises. Besides helping plan the curriculum handbook for sophomores, Mr. Potter served as dean of boys and adviser to Axemen's Council.

Students with academic and personal problems often turned for help to one of the four full-time counselors, Miss Barbara Barker, Mrs. Helen Hall, Merle Hayes and Ambrose Huff. Working with scheduling and attendance records, the counselors also assisted in interpreting test results and offering career guidance.

STUDENT OFFICERS

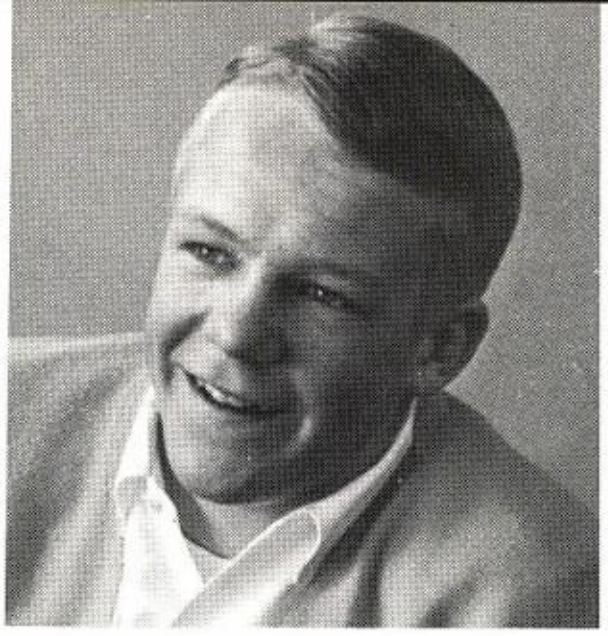
A Look of Leadership

Co-treasurers Marge Blair and Allie Cummings

Secretary Kay Kuchera

Co-auditors Larry Yok and Bob Shearer

Historian Linda Smartt



Vice-president Gary Papé

Student Manager Rob Bearden

Capably filling the executive positions of student government, officers were well-occupied with summer workshops, regional conferences, and a new school constitution, as well as the regular business of the school. Intercity cabinet meetings and a visit to Beaverton High School, which was later reciprocated, provided opportunities for a useful exchange of ideas.

Benefiting from a National Association of Student Councils conference in Bangor, Maine, and an international student conclave hosted by the New York Herald Tribune in Williamsburg, Va., President Jon Hoffman brought back fresh ideas and spirit. Such problems as the decline of manners and morals and the need for better communications between students and Student Council were met head-on under his leadership.

The supervision of the annual Charity Drive rested with Vice-president Gary Papé, a great responsibility which he accepted with enthusiasm. Substituting for Jon at several meetings, Gary did much to coordinate backstage operations of the executive council. Working with Gary was Student Manager Rob Bearden, who officiated at the many pep assemblies and games.

Minutes, agendas, and correspondence occupied Secretary Kay Kuchera's time while Linda Smartt, historian, kept an attractive scrapbook of all publicized South Eugene activities and achievements. The heavy financial responsibilities of the student body were continually felt by Co-Auditors Bob Shearer and Larry Yok, and Co-Treasurers Allie Cummings and Marge Blair, under the supervision of Miss Mary Mallery.

STUDENT COUNCIL

A Place to Speak Your Mind

Senior Mary Bartle adds point in Student Council discussion of election procedures.

United under the leadership of the executive council, this year's energetic Student Council contributed to school government in many ways. A revised constitution was proposed, amended after active discussion, and accepted in an all-school vote as the major business of the year. Implementation by statutes followed the pattern of state and federal governments.

Striving for improved class-to-council communications and increased participation, student government demanded considerable time and talent of the 61 homeroom representatives. Standing committee chairmen took the lead in introducing legislation and supervising student opinion surveys which aroused interest in such issues as the 2.00 GPA requirement for student body officers and the budgeting of funds.

The sincere desire to achieve, the heat of discussions, and the lively humor of the students made the bimonthly meetings a time of challenge and learning for all involved.

GIRLS' LEAGUE,

AXEMEN'S COUNCIL

Outlets for Energies

Adding new activities to the old, Girls' League and Axemen's Council played major roles in school life, offering all students many opportunities to take part in service and social projects.

Under the enthusiastic leadership of President Laura Hollister and Adviser Miss Nina Kitts, Girls' League planned and hosted a variety of social events, including the Big and Little Sister Picnic in the fall, the winter Doernbecher Tea, and the Father-Daughter banquet in April. Pin Club, organized for girls earning gold or silver service pins, was instituted this year and sponsored a number of activities. As in previous years, Girls of the Month were selected, and a senior scholarship was awarded to the most deserving girl.

Axemen's Council, directed by President Randy Rubenstein and Adviser Paul Potter, was equally busy. Included on its agenda were Hello Week, the sale of student telephone directories, a successful intramural program, and the Father-Son banquet. Nine senior boys were recognized as Axemen of the Month, and a $100 scholarship was awarded to a senior boy at the end of the year.

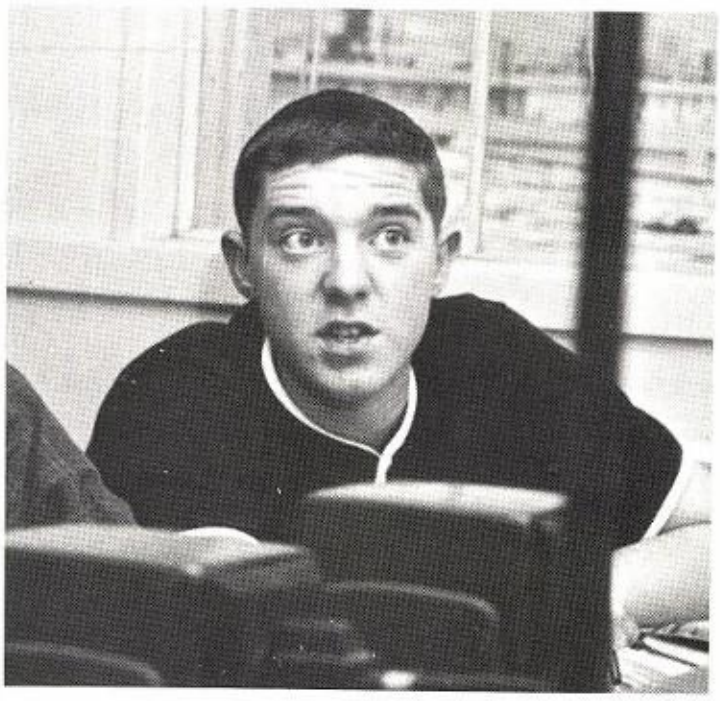
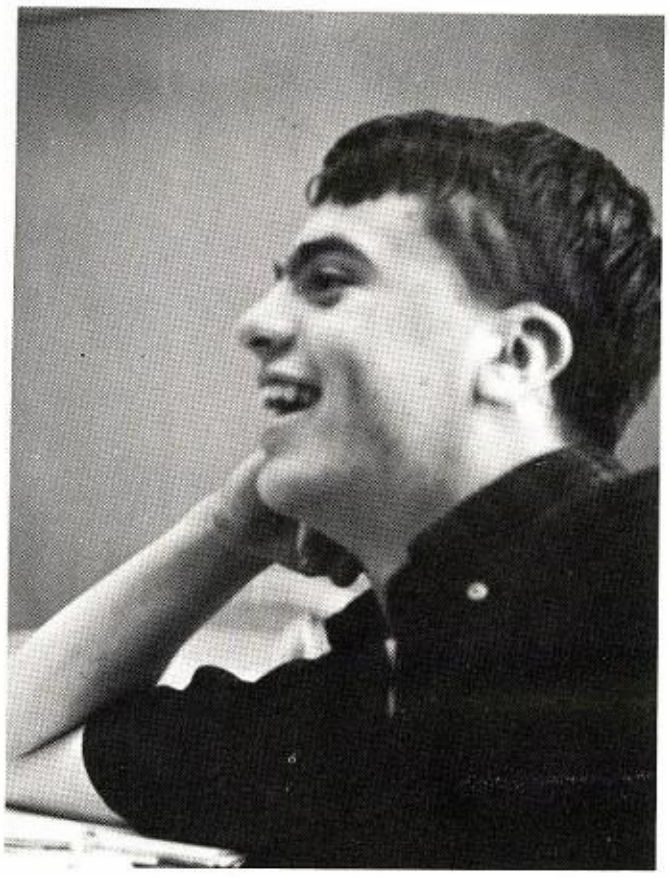
COMPUTERS





ENGLISH

Shakespeare to Sartre

As one of the backbones of high school curriculum, English included far more than the traditional aspects of grammar and literature. Basic skills of word usage and understanding were sharpened by extensive reading and composition, and most of all by discussion of the underlying meaning and philosophies of novels, plays, poems, and non-fiction works.

In addition to required general English, students were offered several special-interest electives, including drama, speech, debate, stagecraft, reading, journalism, and creative writing. In a special humanities seminar, students explored the world of art, music, religion, and philosophy.

A system of varying achievement levels was the mark of South Eugene's English department in which basic, regular, advanced and honors classes were offered at all three grade levels. Capable seniors in English 5 concentrated on college-level work and a chance for college credit from the spring Advanced Placement examinations. This year two classes were necessary to accommodate the increased number of students eligible to take the course.

LIBRARY

Center of Knowledge

South Eugene's instructional materials center is one of the best-stocked libraries in the state. Under the direction of Mrs. Winifred Dey, the library provided the opportunity as well as the atmosphere for learning.

With the expansion of the audio-visual laboratory, completed in October, students and faculty were able to take better advantage of tape-recorders, phonographs, projectors, and copy machines. When a student was not able to take a book or magazine from the library, his problem was solved by using one of the two new copy machines. Pages were reproduced on the Thermofax or the 3M Photocopier machines.

Audio-visual activities were coordinated by Walter Miller and his assistant, Arthur Flynn.

THE AXE

Keeping Posted

Always working against deadlines, members of The Axe staff regularly covered their "beats," typed up stories, and helped with page layout—all a part of the fun of recording a year filled with activity. Averaging 12 pages each issue, 2,200 copies of the paper were distributed every other Friday, keeping the school and community informed of happenings at South Eugene.

Skill, patience, and long hours were required of the staff due to a change in printing process from letterpress to offset. Though at first disappointing in appearance, the new less expensive method allowed for a greater quantity of copy. It wasn't long before the staff, under the editorship of Liz Perry, mastered the difficulty of preparing photo-ready paste-up pages to win a Medalist, the highest rating from Columbia Scholastic Press.

EUGENEAN

Memory Makers

A year of memories in pictures and print was recorded by the 1965 Eugenean staff. Beginning in the fall with ideas and imagination but no experience, staff members learned quickly and were soon busy designing layouts, ordering pictures, writing and rewriting copy. With the help of co-editors Ellen Smith and Bill Miller and adviser Mrs. Alyce Sheetz, students survived the first deadline crisis and worked more confidently toward the next.

Maintaining the high standards of previous yearbooks was both a challenge and an incentive for the staff, as 1963 and 1964 Eugeneans were awarded the highest ratings possible—All-American from National Scholastic Press, Medalist from Columbia Scholastic Press, and A+ from the National School Yearbook Association.

The Search Never Ends

Continued experimentation in curriculum marked the South Eugene science department under the direction of Dr. Dirk Ten Brinke. In addition to regular biology, chemistry and physics, BSCS, CHEMS and PSSC were offered, opening wider doors of learning to advanced students in the field.

Biological Sciences Curriculum Study, in its third year at South, stressed direct observation and experimentation. Chemistry Education Materials Study was based on the inductive approach, emphasizing chemical principles rather than descriptive chemistry. Supported by the National Science Foundation, Physical Science Study Committee courses centered on the basic conflicts between the particle and wave theories of light.

Evening lab sessions were conducted weekly at which students had an opportunity to catch up on unfinished assignments or experiment with new topics of interest. Students utilized equipment ranging from test tubes to stroboscopes in their work.

Planting for Progress

Future farmers and foresters found challenge, interest and exercise in the varied activities offered by South's agriculture and forestry departments.

Excursions to the Lane County Extension Agriculture Service, Eastern Lane Fire Protection Agency, Weyerhaeuser saw mill, Georgia-Pacific plywood mill, and Oregon State University forest production lab and fish and game department constituted much of the forestry students' year.

Practical experience included furnishing and repairing the school greenhouse, planting trees, collecting fir cones, marketing Christmas trees, and participating in a three-day survival trip.

For those enrolled in agriculture classes, the agenda was equally busy. Field trips were taken to the Eugene Fruit Growers' Association cannery and Bartel's Meat Company. Successful operations of local farmers were viewed later in the year in the hope that students would learn the "secrets of their success."

ARTS AND CRAFTS

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Masters in the Making

Pursuing activities which ranged from silk screen lettering to ceramics, members of the arts and crafts department spent the year profitably occupied. Use of audio-visual aids as well as personal experimentation helped students to a clearer understanding.

Apple wood, scrap metal, wire and even peach seeds were used in making jewelry. With the stress on originality and basic design, classes created necklaces, bracelets, cuff links and belt buckles. Other projects were the printing of Christmas cards displayed in early December and a February art show.

Building model homes was a major activity of the industrial arts department. Students designed and constructed scale model homes which were then sent to the home economics department for interior decoration.

In addition, the standard courses in wood, metal and technical drawing provided an opportunity to learn basic drawing and sketching skills as well as the use of necessary tools.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Victory Over Verbs

New doors to learning were opened for students when they enrolled in a foreign language class and discovered the native characteristics and customs of another culture. Use of the $15,000 language laboratory helped students gain self-confidence by listening to their own voices, hearing tapes and conversing with various guest speakers.

Beginning courses concentrated on pronunciation and grammar while literature and oral conversation were emphasized for more advanced students. South Eugene's program of foreign languages included four years of French, three of Spanish, two of German, and two of Latin.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Fitness is Fun

Piercing whistles, straining muscles, and icy showers marked the usual hustle and bustle of the physical education center at South Eugene. Introducing 75 percent of the student body to a variety of activities, the department offered instruction in more than 15 different sports.

With sophomore PE chiefly developmental, juniors and seniors found stress placed on individual and group activities. Advanced seniors and juniors were enlisted to help instruct the larger sophomore classes. They taught fundamental techniques and organized inter-squad games as part of a student leadership program established in 1962. Co-educational PE, a first for South Eugene, was initiated this year with a special gymnastics course instructed by Harry Johnson. A class of 20 girls and 15 boys provided interested students with a chance for more specialized work.

Emphasizing improvement of knowledge and attitudes, the health instruction program was organized as a nine-week sophomore course and a four-and-a-half week period for juniors and seniors. Students in sub-par physical condition were offered a course specially adapted to their individual needs.

Past and Present

Understanding of America and its world-wide neighbors was the goal of the social science department at South Eugene. Under the direction of Dr. Mildred Williams, work was continued to expand the curriculum. In addition to regular World History, US History and Modern Problems, Advanced Placement classes and semester courses in economics and international relations were offered. Plans were also laid for a class in psychology to be added next year.

Combined English and history classes were again given, helping students gain greater insight into the relationship between the two subjects through use of the team-teaching method. Numerous films and speakers formed a part of the department's effort to provide a well-rounded program.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Safety on Wheels

South Eugene students participated in a successful three-day-a-week defensive driving program under the direction of Delbert Edwards and his assistant, Dave Powell. Mr. Edwards served during the year as a director of the American Driver and Traffic Safety Education Association, a division of the National Education Association.

Two days a week were spent in the classroom for lectures and one day for actual driving. Students were tested on night and peripheral vision and reaction times. They learned how to change tires, how a car engine operates, and were instructed in the psychology of driving. A discount on insurance rates was given to those students who successfully completed the course.

Students drove a 1964 Chevrolet provided by Lew Williams Chevrolet, and a 1965 Ford from Kendall Ford Co.

HOME ECONOMICS

Pots and Pins

Tantalizing aromas and the busy hum of sewing machines filled the hall near the home economics rooms. As the girls tried their hand at new recipes, they also learned the values of nutrition and attractive meal preparation. Students in sewing classes were able to design and make their own clothing.

In a class in home furnishings, directed by Mrs. Betty Wormington, girls rejuvenated and recovered old furniture with fabrics of their own choosing.

In December and May the girls held teas for their mothers at which they modeled their various creations from school clothes to formal evening wear. Mothers were treated to fancy French pastries provided by the cooking department under Mrs. Anne Morris.

MATHEMATICS

Countdown Figures

Marked by modern teaching methods and a variety of courses, South's math department extended its curriculum in an attempt to provide a class to fit every student's needs.

Under the forward-looking direction of Dr. Oscar Schaaf, two new semester classes, probability and statistics and modern algebra, were added to the roster. Collaboration with the business and science departments was established for the first year. Under this plan probability and statistics students took a two-week course on correct operation of calculator machines, while Math 5 classes were instructed in measurement, ratio and proportion, trigonometry and other topics related to science.

The team-teaching program was continued in an effort to find which courses lent themselves best to large group instruction. Organized in 1961, the program allows a teacher to lecture to large groups while his associate assists with individual difficulties. Last year it was found necessary to teach a Math 4 class of 100 students in the cafeteria. This year this type of instruction was tried with Math 5, helping the staff gain a better understanding as to when large, or small group teaching can be used to best advantage.

MUSIC

Swinging and Singing

South Eugene's music wing was filled with bustling activity as A Cappella choir, girls' choir, band and orchestra practiced for various musical functions throughout the year.

In November, a full house heard Arthur Honegger's dynamic oratorio, "King David," presented by the A Cappella choir under Elbert Morton and the orchestra directed by Nathan Cammack. Sight and sound were blended as the band, conducted by Robert Moblo, performed "Opus V in Color" in February and "Concert on the Green" in May. Girls choir sang in the Jester Hairston Festival in April, an eagerly-awaited event in which all city school choirs participated.

In the spring, the musical groups entered various city and district contests in which they maintained their high quality of performance.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Something for Everyone

One of the most extensive and best equipped departments in the school, the business education center offered a variety of courses ranging widely in subject matter and degree of difficulty.

In addition to the conventional courses in bookkeeping, accounting, and typing, instruction was offered in office machine operations, business law and distributive education. Those enrolled in office machines and procedures classes learned correct use of dictaphones, calculation, and duplicating machines, while business law taught fundamentals of basic legal transactions. Distributive education was a work-study program in which students received one credit for class work and one credit for working 400 hours during the school year at an approved retail selling job.

TEACHER, NURSES TRAINING

A Chance to Help

Future nurses and teachers gained actual experience in their prospective professions while still in high school. Qualified students selected by Vice-principal Miss Nina Kitts worked under the direct supervision of teachers at Francis Willard Elementary School. They received grades for correcting papers, conducting spelling exercises and accompanying classes on field trips.

A program in nursing enabled girls to work directly with Mrs. June Ketel, school nurse, keeping student health records and administering first-aid.

Full credit was given for each course and the work helped students decide if they were suited for these careers.

STUDENT, TEACHER AIDES

Helping Hands

Student and teacher aides proved to be an indispensable part of the academic activity at South Eugene. Girls who assisted in the library, counselors' offices and physical education department received Girls' League hours, while classroom credit was given to those working in the main office as part of standard secretarial training. Among the many duties performed, girls filed papers, typed letters, and collected and recorded absentee slips.

Seven women hired by the school board gave teachers more time for classroom preparation by supervising study periods, correcting tests, and cutting stencils.

RETIRING TEACHERS

An Era Ends

After 12 years at South Eugene, four of them as vice-principal, Col. Emory L. Bruns, the "conscience of the school," retired in June. An ROTC honor graduate of South Dakota State College, Col. Bruns had a distinguished 13-year military career and was 15 years at different schools across the country before coming to SEHS in 1952.

Known for his ever-watchful eye and rare smile, Col. Bruns was a familiar sight keeping order in the cafeteria, accompanying Ski Club on its many trips, or playing the saxophone in the school Pep Band. Feared because of his disciplinary responsibilities, yet respected for his fairness and firmness of conviction, Col. Bruns, through personal courage and perceptive analysis of school problems, made a lasting contribution to South Eugene High.

With his retirement this year, world history teacher Alan Wickham concluded a long career of school service, including 21 years in Eugene. A graduate of the University of Oregon, he was superintendent at Halsey Junior High and principal at Gilbert High School, Portland, before joining the Eugene High faculty in 1944.

One of the few remaining "old-timers" at South Eugene, Mr. Wickham was for many years adviser to the Chess Club, and frequently served as a class adviser. In 1963, with his wife Golda, dean of women at the University of Oregon, Mr. Wickham took a nine-month 'round-the-world tour. Though a strict disciplinarian, Mr. Wickham was respected by students and faculty alike for his interesting presentation of material, and for his sincere love of teaching.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

It's a Small World

Students from many different countries brought knowledge of distant lands to South Eugene. Distinguishing themselves in drama, athletics and student government, they still found time for informal discussions with fellow Axemen, talks to various clubs and visits to neighboring schools.

In addition to Praophan Kingsuck of Thailand, the American Field Service student, others were sponsored by church groups or were here independently. Rose-Marie Lindstrom and Akira Seno were sponsored by the International Christian Youth Exchange; Ahti Jussila was a member of the Youth for Understanding Teen-age Exchange Program; and Toyoko Yamashita, Judy Huang, Puntarik Dilokwanich and Barbara Kwei attended on an individual basis. Getting acquainted with these visitors from overseas was fun as well as educational, making the world seem a little smaller and more alive for South Eugene students.

German Club

Meetings in the form of seminars to discuss the culture and people of Germany often ended in spirited debates for the German Club as members fired rapid questions and answers at each other in the German language. These after-school sessions successfully achieved the aim of increasing communication and comprehension levels of each student. Members also enjoyed exercising their wits by playing Scrabble in German.

German life was described by foreign students from the University of Oregon, and Adviser Gerald Webking who traveled in Germany in 1964. Led by President Gregg Husk, members also viewed German films at the Mayflower Theater, and handled concessions at a basketball game to earn money for the club treasury.

Spanish Club

The opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of the language and people of Spanish-speaking countries was offered to members of the Spanish Club. Monthly meetings emphasized practice in speaking the language and introduction to speakers who had been to various parts of Latin America. Members participated in traditional folk-singing festivals, games, and dances to obtain a better idea of Spanish color and customs. A Christmas party and a spring picnic, as well as a spirited initiation ceremony, accentuated the group's activities. President was Eileen Detling; adviser, Miss Barbara Stiles.

French Club

An unusual initiation ceremony characterized the informal atmosphere of this year's French Club. New members were sent on a scavenger hunt and required to ask local residents for the necessary articles in French. This amusing challenge was followed by a party where initiates proved their mettle by baking cookies from authentic French recipes. Other activities included a Christmas party, where members caroled and played games in French, and a series of discussions on French literary history. President was Ron Strauss; advisers, Mrs. Sue Bach and Mrs. Betty Kaspar.

IRL president Mike Bray shows slides of his summer in Germany as an American Field Service student.

IRL

Foreign cultures became sources of learning for members of the International Relations League as the group promoted better world-wide understanding through its various projects and activities. The UNICEF drive collected more than $500 at Halloween, while the Christmas party featured a stamp exchange and entertainment by South's foreign students. The IRL sponsored the annual United Nations Day, the Foreign Student Dessert, and the American Field Service program and fund-raising dinner. Delegates studied the theme, "The Sino-Soviet Rift," for several weeks before attending the state IRL conference held in March at the University of Oregon where the club received two outstanding achievement awards. Two innovations this year were after-school seminars featuring foreign students, political scientists, and Peace Corps workers as speakers; and a newsletter, the Exposé, published to inform students of current activities. Mike Bray was president; Miss Grace Miller and James Freeman, advisers.

DECA

Designed to encourage career study and leadership development, the Distributive Education Club of America gave members an opportunity to observe the business world in action. The group toured the Lloyd Center in Portland, the Pendleton Woolen Mills, and Meier and Frank Co. in Salem. Representatives from the Eugene Chamber of Commerce led a discussion with members on the importance of retail selling classes for future employees. Members gained valuable experience and good business sense in operating the school store. Participation in the state DECA convention in Newport in the spring concluded the year's activities. President was Laura Hollister; adviser, Mrs. Alice Barnhart.

Politicos

Striving to promote informed citizenry through active interest in current affairs, Politicos members heard outstanding speakers on international politics. Members discussed important issues with such speakers as Steve Goldschmidt, a South Eugene graduate who was a Civil Rights worker in Mississippi during the summer of 1964; John McCulloch, an Oregon agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and Charles Porter, a former Congressman from the Fourth District. Guided by President Randy Rubenstein, the club was advised by Mrs. Penelope Greaves and Edgar Goodnough.

Quill and Scroll

Ambitious students who did outstanding work in some phase of school publications were eligible for membership in Quill and Scroll, international honor society for high school journalists. Members were chosen from The Axe and Eugenean staffs, and from the Journalism I class. President Elizabeth Perry and Mrs. Alyce Sheetz, adviser, conducted the initiation ceremony in May at the home of Dian Papé.

National Thespians

Under the able leadership of President Ron Strauss and Adviser Edward Ragozzino, the National Thespians worked toward their goal of promoting dramatic arts in secondary schools and in the community. Besides providing students with experiences in drama outside the regular school productions, this honorary put on a Christmas show for the children of Weyerhaeuser employees, sponsoring a spring banquet at which the "Minnies," drama awards, were presented, and awarded a scholarship to a graduating senior. Other activities included performances by the Thespian Singers, a select group chosen from the membership, the parents' potluck and show, and the Thespian Instant Theatre, a variety of short presentations including pantomime, improvisations, and theatre of the absurd.

National Spanish Honorary

Membership in National Spanish Honorary requires A's for two successive semesters in either first or second year Spanish. Recognition of this excellent scholarship is given in the spring when students are initiated in a formal candle-lighting ceremony. Although the honorary sponsored no other activities, members were encouraged to participate in the lectures, field trips, and seminars under the direction of the Spanish Club. At the club's Christmas party, students observed a traditional Spanish custom by breaking a festive pinata. President was Kathy Herrman; adviser, Miss Barbara Stiles.

Chemistry Club

Strange and permeating odors drifting out of Room 228 after school often meant that members of Chemistry Club were hard at work on their individual research projects. Adviser John Hale and President Greg Bullard aided students with their projects at weekly meetings. Spending most of their time in the laboratory, members restricted other club functions to one field trip to the University of Oregon chemistry laboratories. Here students inspected the equipment and gained first-hand information from lab personnel. The club helped increase student interest in chemistry and gave members an opportunity to use school science facilities.

Activities included a series of films on modern aeronautics and metallurgy, a lecture by a University of Oregon professor, and a field trip to the Linfield College Science Open House.

Biology Club

Investigations of the anatomy of plants and the construction of an underwater camera were a few of the individual research projects conducted by members of the Biology Club, headed this year by President Doug Cook and Adviser Mrs. Nora Robertson. Members gained valuable knowledge of the biological sciences through a variety of field trips taken by the club. Included were a day at the coast, Gold Lake, the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry, an afternoon at the "Mouse House," the animal laboratory on the University of Oregon campus, and a tour of the University Museum of Natural History.

Ski Club

Braving record high snowfalls and roads which had progressed from the pothole to the trench stage, members of the Ski Club made trips to Willamette Pass nearly every week during the winter months. Despite the often icy highways, slopes were in excellent condition and the skiers turned out in full force. At the monthly meetings, presided over by President Scott Perkins and Col. Emory Bruns, the adviser, skiing films were shown and future trips were planned. The club-sponsored fashion show in the fall provided entertainment following the initiation of new members. The year was highlighted by an overnight trip in April to Mount Bachelor near Bend.

Astronomy Club

Enjoying its first year at South, the Astronomy Club was one of the school's most active organizations. Meeting once a week at the YMCA, members conducted classes in mirror grinding, telescope making, and stellar photography, and organized discussions about the various planets, stars and constellations. Headed by President Jim Johnson and Adviser Roger Fidler, the club held evening sky parties when weather permitted. A lecture by a member of Eugene's senior astronomy club and a public slide show comprised the rest of the year's activities.

Surrounded by transmitters, variable frequency oscillators, general coverage receivers, modulators and mikes, members of the Radio Club worked long hours to further their knowledge of radio communications and eventually earn their "ham" or amateur operator licenses. Amid the click of Morse Code and the drone of radio theory lectures, President John Gerstmann and Adviser Kenneth Howland led the club to another successful year.

Science Clubs Federated

Coordinating the functions of the various science clubs throughout the year was the purpose of an executive board known as Science Clubs Federated. Members were the chairman, Pat Keating, and the presidents of the five science clubs, Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Radio and Astronomy. Meeting once a month under the supervision of Advisers Dr. Dirk Ten Brinke and Mrs. Phyllis Talus, the federation appropriated funds for the individual clubs, planned special lectures, such as one given by James Anderson of the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry, showed science films from the University of Oregon, and planned other functions such as field trips to the coast. The fall and spring science desserts helped raise funds to finance the various activities.

Y-Teens

Community service and development of the individual were incentives that guided Y-Teens in many worthwhile activities. Led by President JoAnne Woodworth, the group participated in the International Festival at the University of Oregon, a mock legislature held in Salem, and a local Youth in Government panel. The Y-Teens sponsored a spaghetti dinner and several parties jointly with the Hi-Y organization, as well as many discussions of teenage problems. Speakers included hair stylists, educators and Peace Corps workers. An outstanding boy and girl of the year were named in the spring. Advisers were Mrs. Linda Chambreau and Mrs. Darothie Mansergh.

Judo Club

Girls again dominated the Judo Club as it moved into its second year at South. Members were instructed in this ancient art of self-defense by senior Kirk Rupp with supervision by Adviser Albert Leinbach. The group first learned the basic holds and pressure points of the body and by the end of the year had progressed to intricate and skillfull maneuvers. Led by President Janet Haffner, students met for business and practice in the well-padded wrestling room.

Rifle Club

"Safety first" was the unwritten motto of this year's Rifle Club headed by Rangemaster Doug Newman and Adviser Burdette Kindred. Besides teaching rifle safety, the club promoted group cooperation, good sportsmanship, recreation and fun. Meeting twice a month for target practice, members increased their skill and advanced their standings in the National Rifle Association. Two members, Bob Refsnider and Doug Newman, received the Distinguished Rifleman's Award, highest honor given to junior shooters.

Service Club

Acting as official representatives of the student body, Service Club members handled ticket-selling at all home games. New jackets of royal purple identified students willing to serve South in this capacity, which demanded considerable time and effort. The group ushered at such events as swim meets and the district wrestling tournament. Highlighting club activities were fund-raising projects for the underprivileged children of Eugene, a Christmas party, and the annual coast trip in May. President was Mark Dickinson; advisers, Richard Embree and George Petersen.

FHA

Exploring the many aspects of home economics as a career was the major aim of the Future Homemakers Club. Local and professional home economists brought knowledge and advice to members in interesting talks. In November, 90 girls traveled to the home economics department at Oregon State University. Other trips were taken to local bakeries and department stores. Members participated in informative social hours and worked on such projects as barbecues and candy sales. Sponsoring a combination tea and style show at Christmas, and a second one in May to review spring styles, the FHA also took part in awarding a scholarship at the state level. Led by Carolyn Rasmussen, the club was advised by Mrs. Betty Wormington.

FFA

Developing leadership, cooperation, and citizenship were the primary goals of the Future Farmers of America. With a substantial yearly budget of over $1000, this organization enjoyed a wide variety of activities. Field trips included an afternoon at the Eugene Fruit Growers Cannery, a day touring ranches and farms to learn good management practices, and a weekend trip, conducted by Oregon State University, to observe eastern Oregon agriculture. Lectures by the state FFA president, a farm equipment dealer, bankers, and a representative from a finance company were heard. The action taken by this year's club to abolish the traditional "no girls allowed" code became the subject of widespread controversy in FFA chapters around the state. Under the able leadership of President Eldon Townsend and Adviser Kenneth Noteboom, the Future Farmers helped many interested students in their work toward careers in agriculture.

JBLA

Promoting student interest in the business world was the primary objective of the Junior Business Leaders of America. Employment officials, secretaries, and business administrators stressed the importance of leadership and responsibility. Members viewed informative films and traveled to company offices, collection agencies, and data-processing plants. Social activities included a get-acquainted potluck for members and their parents in the fall, and a spring dessert. President was Darlene Chatwood; adviser, Miss Zilda Hayes.

Math Club

Such challenging subjects as rubber-sheet geometry, patho-circles, infinity, and the Mobius strip were thoroughly investigated by members of this year's Math Club. At their Wednesday evening meetings, presided over by President Meg Ghent and Adviser Dr. Oscar Schaaf, students discovered many new fields of mathematical interest to which they were not exposed in the classroom. Several professors and graduate students from the University of Oregon spoke on a variety of topics associated with mathematics, and an afternoon was spent viewing a computer in the University math laboratory. The club was open to any student with an interest in math and a desire to learn.

Meeting once a month for lectures, films and panel discussions, interested students planned their careers as teachers of tomorrow. Visiting the state and regional conventions, members of the Future Teachers of America also heard speeches by University of Oregon education majors and other persons affiliated with the teaching profession. Observing classes, helping instructors, and attending seminars at the University provided useful practice for FTA members. A $100 scholarship was awarded to the club's outstanding senior. President Karen Copperstone, guided by Dr. Raymond Kehl and William Dedman, made this year's program a worthwhile experience.

Pep Club

Royal purple blazers, white name blouses, and purple pleated skirts easily identified members of South Eugene's cheering section. Primarily concerned with rallying school spirit, the Pep Club enthusiastically spurred the Axemen on to victory at all home games and chartered buses for student transportation for away-games. Members also supervised rally dances and concession stands to raise money, and sold pins, pennants, and spirit tags to further encourage student participation. Under the direction of President Dian Pape and Adviser Mrs. Anne Morris, the group sponsored a banquet at the end of each season to honor all athletes and coaches. Parents were invited as special guests.

Synchronettes

Sharply clad, with two new interchangeable outfits, a purple and white sailor suit and a skirt-sweater combination, South's precision dance group, the Synchronettes, again took top honors for enjoyable half time entertainment at football and basketball games. A student body organization this year for the first time, the Synchronettes executed original dances to such popular hits as "Louie, Louie," "Bill Bailey," and "The Addams Family." Led by President Lynn Neufeld and Adviser Miss Edna Glines, the 14 girls contributed immeasurably to school spirit and enjoyment.

White Shirt Section

Led by South's exuberant yell kings, the boys' white shirt section proved to be a valuable source of school spirit and enthusiasm at football and basketball games. Open to all South boys wearing white shirts, the section contrasted colorfully with the purple of the girls' Pep Club. Thundering out their cheers of encouragement and often poking fun at the opposition, the boys faithfully supported the team in defeat as well as victory.

Pep Band

Gleaming brass instruments and brilliant purple blazers made the Pep Band stand out in crowded stadiums and gymnasiums. Providing lively music for rally squad and Synchronette routines, the band also ended each football and basketball game with the Alma Mater, "Stately She Stands." Led by student director Steve Ankrom with assistance from Robert Moblo, this year's spirited Pep Band added color and excitement to sports activities.

Characteristic sophomore timidity vanished when the Hatchettes arrived to cheer the junior varsity teams on to victory. Enthusiastically responding to efforts of the JV rally to teach them the traditional school yells, members aided Pep Club in promoting school spirit. Donating baskets of food and toys to needy families at Christmas and a spring coast trip were other activities. President Vicki Smith was assisted by advisers Miss Peggy Mittendorf and Mrs. Colleen Reimer.

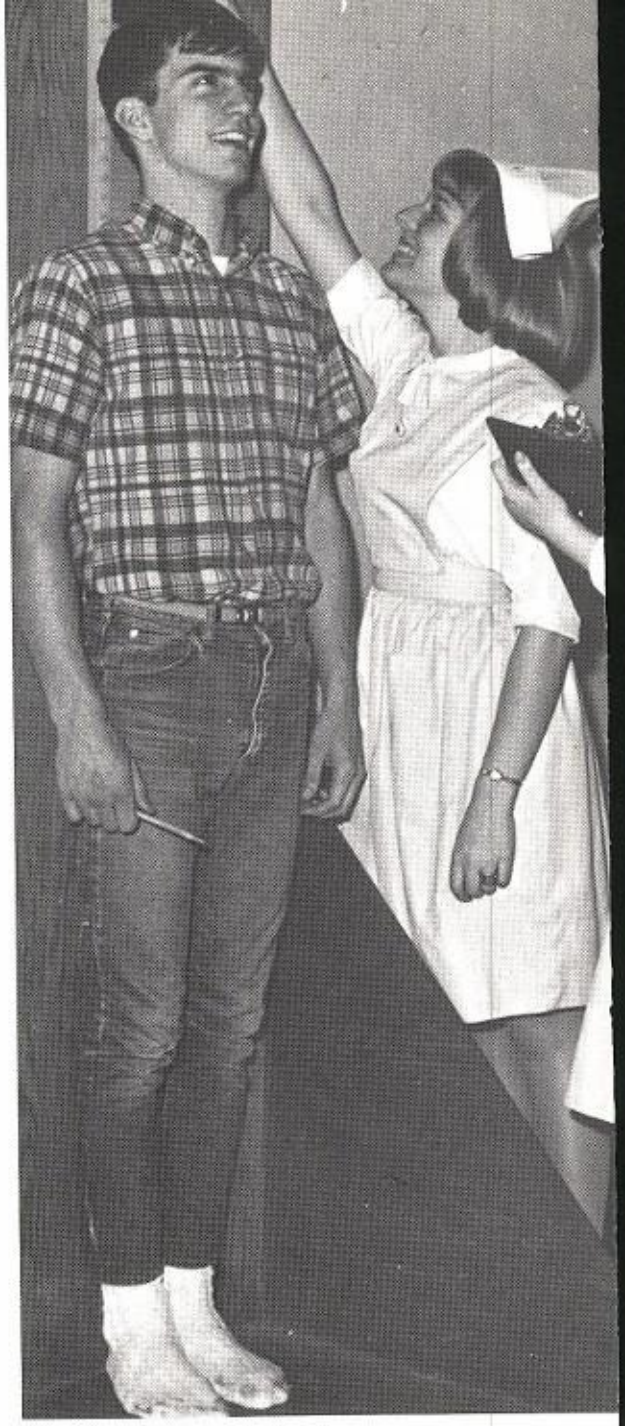
Majorettes

Stepping high to the beat of the band, the Majorettes twirled their way through half time at many South home football and basketball games. Colorfully attired in uniforms of white and purple satin with glittering purple sequins, white boots, and purple gloves, they performed in Opus V in Color and in several community parades. The group was led by Calista Clow.

Medical Careers Club

Cruising down the halls of Sacred Heart Hospital behind wheel chairs, giving bed baths, mopping floors and running errands kept determined members of the Medical Careers Club busy. Tedious though they were, the long hours paid off as many members gained their caps and pins, identifying them as Red Cross volunteer nurses' aides.

An X-ray technician, a pharmacist, and other guest speakers from the medical world highlighted the monthly meetings, presided over by Mike Bagaason. Adviser Mrs. June Ketel, school nurse, participated with lectures on the Red Cross training program. Field trips to mental and tuberculosis hospitals, as well as hayrides and parties, rounded out the year's ambitious schedule.



Medical Careers Club members Kay Lynn Neufeld measure Joe Robertson's health record.

Chess Club

Checkmate! A familiar word to members of the Chess Club, one which could mean victory or defeat. Meeting almost daily in Room 208, members pitted their skill against one another in tournament play. Winners participated in matches sponsored by the Willamette Valley Chess League composed of Cottage Grove, Creswell, Sheldon, South Eugene, Springfield, Thurston and Willamette high schools. Demonstrations and analysis of games by members increased their skill in this challenging game. Adviser Mrs. Joan Haworth's personal interest inspired the members, led by President Robert Yood.

Paletteers

Equipped with poster paints, reams of butcher paper, and a desire for artistic self-expression, members of the Paletteers met informally to put their talents to good use. The club was of invaluable service to the school when posters were needed for dances, games and other functions. Activities included the painting in oils of a mural, which will remain permanently outside the art room, and the decorating of windows at Safeway stores during the Christmas season.

Fashion designers, architects, and textile workers, as well as artists from the University of Oregon, spoke to the Paletteers about their respective careers in the world of art. Sketching trips were taken to the coast, the McKenzie River, and throughout the Eugene area. At the end of the year, the most active member was awarded a $10.00 gift certificate to Cole's Artist Supplies. Headed by Clell Gibson, the group was advised by Maurice Van.

RALLY SQUADS

"With an E"

Six flashes of purple and white, leading hundreds of classmates in boisterous cheers at athletic events, the varsity rally girls were largely responsible for the tremendous spirit demonstrated by South throughout the year. Among their favorite yells which aroused the aspirations of both the teams and the student body were "Thunderation," "The Axe," and "With an E." Members were Mary Bartle, Barbara Blenkinsop, Gretchen Campbell, Patty Hearn, Dianne Nelson, and Nancy Stuart.

Yell Kings George Pullen, Ned Robert and Dave Zarewski guided the boys' white shirt section and stimulated enthusiasm with their humorous yells. Leading the sophomore girls' Hatchettes section during JV games was the attractive Junior Varsity Rally composed of Patty Bowles, Carol Bryant, Melinda Calkin and Lynn Molter.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Triple Toil and Triumph

South's football team in 1964, benefiting from intense spirit and drive, achieved a record of five victories and four defeats. The year was marked by the appointment of an entirely new coaching staff with Dave Powell as head coach assisted by Harry Johnson and Mike Rose. Mr. Powell played fullback on three Axeman teams while attending South Eugene. As a senior he received the Simmons Cup as the "Most Inspirational Player" and the Earl Jones Memorial Trophy as the best senior athlete. While at the University of Oregon Mr. Powell played on the 1957 Rose Bowl team. After graduation he coached JV sports and was head basketball coach at Springfield High School before coming to South last year.

South had difficulties during the first part of the season as a result of lack of experience created by the graduation of most of last year's line and backfield. Injuries to halfbacks John Roche and Dick Ralls further complicated matters. Once the backfield was intact and the necessary experience had been gained, the Axemen won five of their last six games including victories over Marshfield and North Eugene.

The season was initiated against Thurston with a tremendous 27-7 victory which South later forfeited because of an ineligible player. Highlighting the action was an exceptional performance by senior halfback Dick Ralls who gained 189 of the Axemen's 300 yards rushing. Two Colt fumbles and a blocked punt enabled the Axemen to score three touchdowns in the first half. Ralls set up and scored the final touchdown by intercepting a pass on his own 15, followed by runs of 52 and 25 yards for the score.

Against the North Bend Bulldogs the Axemen played to a disappointing defeat, 14-7. Late in the second quarter South mounted its lone successful drive, scoring with two seconds left in the half. In the third quarter two threats were halted by North Bend inside the 15-yard line, and the Bulldogs went on to score the winning touchdown with two minutes remaining in the game.

Victory for South Eugene was imperative when they met Sheldon at Civic Stadium. Eight times the Irish were forced to punt by the Axeman defense; but South failed to cash in on four scoring opportunities and Sheldon gained a touchdown in the second quarter to win for the second successive year. Late in the game South worked its way to Sheldon's six-inch line but was stopped cold on three plunges for the touchdown.

After two losses South began a string of three consecutive shut-outs with a 14-0 win over Springfield. Harrassed by a spirited Miller defense, the Axemen found nothing but frustration until the third quarter when guard Wally Kuykendall blocked a Springfield punt on the 37, picked up the loose ball on the 20, and raced into the end zone. Fullback Mike Johnson iced the victory on a one yard plunge to culminate a 50-yard drive midway in the fourth period. A stout Axeman defense intercepted four Miller passes and allowed Springfield to get past midfield only three times.

The following week South Eugene defeated Cottage Grove 7-0 on a 38-yard run down the sideline by John Roche. Victory was in doubt in the final minutes when the Lions drove to the South 7-yard line, but third and fourth down passes fell incomplete.

Seven bus-loads of students accompanied the team to Coos Bay to tangle with Marshfield, and hopes were high for an upset over the Pirates. South's defense stymied Marshfield's vaunted attack while the Axeman offense performed magnificently in a game which was definitely the highlight of the season. Late in the first quarter South engineered a 64-yard drive for its first score with quarterback Joe Robertson's passes accounting for 61 yards. A fumble on the Pirate 9-yard line led to the next touchdown, and in the third quarter Robertson scampered 44 yards for the last touchdown and a final score of 21-0.

Defeat finally came at the hands of the district champion, Roseburg, 13-6. South's only score came late in the second quarter when Roche lofted a pass to Ralls who raced for a touchdown on a play that covered 50 yards. Against Willamette, however, the Axemen roared back for a 28-14 victory. Behind 7-0, the Axemen tied the score on a 30-yard pass play from Roche to end Rich Brooke in the first quarter. In the second quarter fullback John Porter scored from the two-yard line, climaxing a drive which started with a 56-yard run by Roche. South scored twice in the fourth quarter while Roche halted Willamette's hopes for a comeback with an interception deep in Axeman territory.

In the season's finale, South continued its dominance over North Eugene by defeating them 14-13, making it six victories in as many contests with the Highlanders. But the victory required two scores and the halting of a last-ditch North Eugene threat, all in the fourth quarter. Behind 13-0, South was led by Robertson on a 51-yard march for a touchdown. On the first play after the ensuing kickoff, the Axemen recovered a fumble on the North 31. South drove for a touchdown and Dick Petermann kicked the extra point making it 14-13.

Named to the district's first team were halfback John Roche, guard Wally Kuykendall, and tackle Jim Wathey. Guard Gary Papé was placed on the district's second team. Awarded the Simmons Cup as the "Most Inspirational Player" was John Roche.

JV FOOTBALL

In his first year as JV coach, after four years as varsity backfield coach, Bob Kane guided the hard-hitting JV football team to a tremendous 6-0-1 season. The tie occurred in the second North-South contest with the junior Axemen dominating the game. South was bolstered by a powerful defense which had only 28 points scored against them. With Dennis Frantz and Kip Leonard making most of the points, the JV team sent scores skyrocketing to 38-0 over Cottage Grove, 39-8 against Willamette and 33-6 over Thurston. Success was the result of a combination of teamwork and individual effort as the boys displayed the manpower which will comprise next year's varsity squad.

Hampered by inexperience, the sophomore team, under the direction of Coach Dale Jones, compiled a 3-4 season record. After trouncing North Eugene 26-7 in the opening game, the players dropped two each to Cottage Grove and North Eugene and defeated Sheldon twice. Although lacking the team effort and experience that makes a winning squad, the Baby Axemen showed individual potential in Erik Myrmo and Jim McMillan who scored most of the team's points. Through a year of competition the players developed skills necessary to compete for next year's JV and varsity teams.

The Race Against Time

For the second year in a row, the ambitious Axeman tankers coached by Bob Williams captured the city championship, capping an outstanding season of eight wins and one loss. The team went on to place second in the district contest at Leighton Pool on the University of Oregon campus. Seven of South's members qualified for state, but despite tremendous efforts they finished 13th with 9½ points. South splashed to fourth place in the freestyle relay, Mike Dowling tied for fourth in the 200-yard individual medley, and Roger Barrow placed sixth in the same event. The meet was highlighted by the appearance of Lake Oswego's Don Schollander, the 1964 Olympic gold medalist in four events, who presented awards and spoke informally about his experiences in Japan.

Although few in number, the girls' swim team proved to be the strongest in South's history as it attained second in district and fourth in state. Receiving awards in the state meet were Cheryl Jacobsen, who finished second and third in the 100-yard backstroke and individual medley, respectively; and Sue Brakel who fought to a tie for fourth in the 100-yard freestyle and placed fifth in the 50-yard freestyle.

Miles and Miles of Endurance

Another in a succession of improved Axemen cross country teams was produced in 1964 under the guidance of a new coach, Lloyd Amick. South was paced by Steve Stageberg who won the district meet and placed eleventh in the state finale. Greatly improved over 1963 were Chuck Pietka, Guy Renfro, Dick Thorin and Bruce Dyer, who were counted upon to fill positions left by graduating seniors.

Striving to match the previous year's undefeated dual-meet record, South trounced all of its opponents with the exception of North Eugene which edged the Axemen 27-28 over a new and difficult course in the Coburg Hills. In the second meet of the season the harriers successfully defended their Willamette Invitational crown while Steve Stageberg won the individual championship. Lack of depth, however, was apparent as the Axemen placed third in the district meet at Cottage Grove and sixth in the state championship at Salem's Bush Park course.

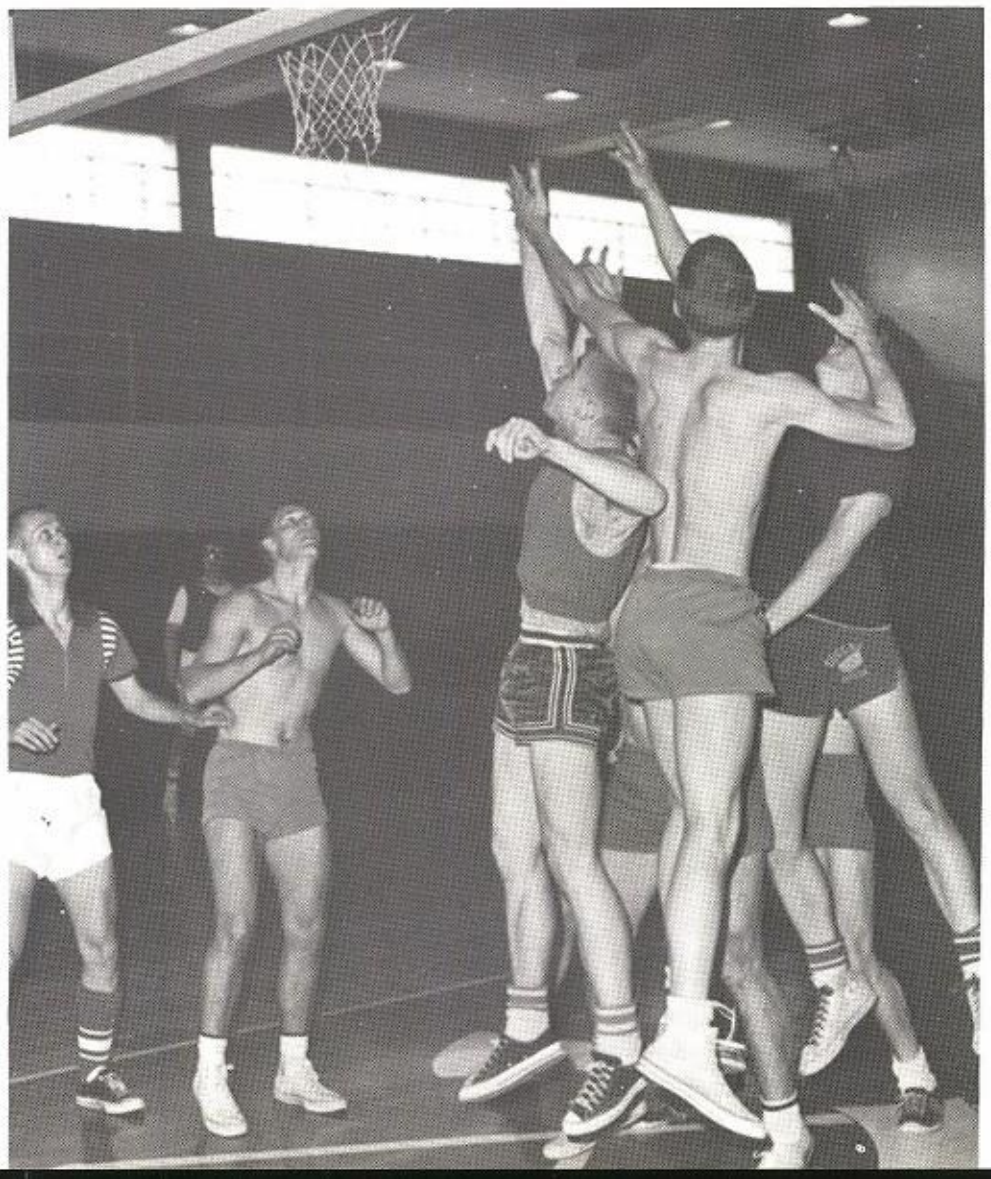
BOYS' INTRAMURALS

Just for Fun



Opportunities for all interested boys to participate in athletics were provided through the intramural program sponsored by the Axemen's Council. Satisfying student needs for physical activity, intramurals extended beyond the program provided by PE classes. Boys not competing on school teams found personal challenge and fun by participating in volleyball and basketball. This year's response was the greatest ever with over 150 taking part.

In volleyball, Ed Larsen's squad, consisting of Bill Miller, Al Tuttle, Fred Jennings, Jim Burke and Randy Rubenstein, captured the championship of the eight-team league. Ninety students turned out to form two basketball leagues of seven teams each. After two months of tough play under modified rules, Pete Nilsen's team won the championship, his squad comprised of John Larsson, Fred Jennings, John Guske, Don Walster and Bill Miller. The council purchased a plaque on which the names of championship team members will be engraved. Due to the tremendous interest, the program will be continued next year.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Hoopster Havoc

Hank Kuchera, or "Kuch" as he is affectionately known, began his 22nd year of coaching at South Eugene with a team which was noticeably lacking in height. As the season progressed, the absence of a team leader and the inability to work as a unit plagued the Axemen while they accumulated a 3-9 record through the first half of the season. Overcoming their dismal start, South displayed striking improvement in team play and hustle during the last portion of the season. Climbing from tenth place and winning seven out of the last ten games, South wound up in fourth place in league standings.

Failure to hit at the freethrow line cost four pre-season victories, including a double-overtime loss to highly regarded Medford, and a one point setback by South Salem. Defeats at the hands of North Eugene, Thurston, Sheldon and Marshfield further frustrated the Axemen but did not discourage them. Highlight of the unsuccessful first half was the drubbing of Springfield, eventual second place finisher, as the Axemen combined tenacious defense with torrid shooting.

Setting the tone for the second half of the season was a 52-51 triumph over Willamette on Jim Burke's driving lay-up with just seconds to go. This game saw the first successful installation of the zone defense by South in many years. Preceded by losses to Thurston and Springfield, six of the final seven games were captured by the Axemen, including a season-ending thumping of North Eugene, 65-48, which enabled South to retain the "crankshaft" trophy, symbolic of athletic superiority between the two schools.

Harold Miller, a local businessman and 1940 graduate of Eugene High, donated the Henry E. Kuchera Trophy to be awarded to the outstanding basketball player. Since the award was to be retroactive, John Pinkstaff was selected for 1964 and John Roche was honored this year. Roche and Al Tuttle were named to the district's third team.

The season produced varsity prospects in juniors Leo Tsou, Dave Carmichael and Randy Schuyler, and in sophomores Court Miner, Terry Kane, Rick Scott and Joe Dunham. With the Greatest of Ease

South Eugene's gymnastics team climaxed an undefeated, untied season by capturing the state championship for the third consecutive year. Scoring a total of 109 points, the Axemen finished well ahead of second place North Eugene with 66 points and third place David Douglas with 46.5 points.

Leading the team in the state meet at McArthur Court on the University of Oregon campus were senior co-captains Dan Tutt and Mike Lyons. Tutt, the only double winner in the meet, took first in all-around and the horizontal bar and placed fourth in both long horse and parallel bars. Lyons showed his prowess with first in floor exercise, second in all-around, second in high bar, and eighth in parallel bars. Senior LeRoy Moninger placed second in parallel bars. He also finished third in floor exercise behind Lyons and junior Bob Hanes, which marked the first time in the history of the state meet that a team has ever swept an event. Tim Rayley and Tim Pearson, rivals in the side horse throughout the season, tied for second, while sophomore Rick Sikes captured fourth in the horizontal bar and eighth in all-around. Accounting for South's remaining points were senior Spence Kissler who took sixth in still rings and Tim Ferguson who placed fifth in the side horse.

A key factor in South's success was Coach Harry Johnson. Since his arrival at SEHS in 1961, Johnson has coached a state championship team three out of his four years. He has been instrumental in building South's gymnastics program, as well as in the promotion of the sport on a competitive basis among high schools in Oregon.

The 1964-65 wrestling team finished a tremendous dual-meet season under Coach Bob Williams, compiling a 9-2 win-loss record and taking fourth place in district. Comprised of experienced matmen from last year's squad, the Axemen lost only to North Bend, whom they later defeated, and Marshfield. In the District 5-A-1 tourney in Marshfield, the team finished fourth behind Marshfield, Sheldon and North Bend as the boys experienced a rough semi-final session, dropping matches to opponents that they had beaten earlier in the year.

Leading the team were seniors Randy Povey, Wally Kuykendall, Jim Pickett, Dick Strausborger, Dave Baronti and Jim Girard, juniors Mike Garling and Tom Ray, and sophomore Jim Newman. Povey and Kuykendall were the only boys to go to state, but both were eliminated when they lost their first two matches. BASEBALL

That Grand Old Game

A season characterized by exceptionally good weather provided plenty of sunshine for South's young baseball team. Composed mostly of juniors and sophomores, the starting team was faced with inexperience throughout the season but nevertheless ended with a respectable 8 wins and 7 losses, taking third spot in district behind first place North Eugene and second place Sheldon. The hardballers started out their season by splitting two pre-season games with South Salem. The regular season which followed consisted of three rounds of play, each of which found South facing five other schools: Sheldon, North Eugene, Springfield, Willamette, Thurston. At the end of the first two rounds of play South stood 6 and 4, having bowed twice to both North Eugene and Sheldon. As the third and final series finished, South was 8 and 7, taking games from Willamette and Thurston. The Axemen, however, finished the year in a climactic post-season victory over arch-rival Sheldon. Coach Bob Kane, who worked diligently developing each individual, summed up the season by saying, "We didn't get the hits when we needed them."

Girls Join In

Athletics for the sheer pleasure and exhilaration of physical activity was the purpose of the Girls' Athletic Association. Regardless of skill or experience, girls joined in field hockey, volleyball, basketball, badminton, softball, gymnastics, bowling, and participated in intramurals and sports days with other schools. Highlights of the year were initiation, the second annual awards dessert, and hosting the Northwest Field Hockey Meeting. Joan Brendon was president and Miss Nan Wilcox, adviser.

"Probably the best track team in South Eugene history" were the words of Coach Don Barnhart to describe the District 5-A-1 champions and second place team in the state meet. Undefeated in dual-meet competition, the Axemen also won the mythical Lane A-1 championship. Included in the string of victories was a long-sought-after triumph over North Eugene 69-62.

At the district meet in North Bend on a cold, blustery May day, South compiled an even 100 points to easily out-distance North Eugene, finishing second with 68 points. In the state meet at Corvallis, the Axemen garnered 29 points to tie North Eugene for second place. Al Tuttle won the high jump by setting a state, school, and personal record of 6-6¼; Mark Carter placed second in the shot put; Bob Hanes tied for second in the pole vault; Steve Stageberg completed South's scoring with fourth place in the 880. Also qualifying for the state meet were Tom Holmes, Rich Carter, Ray Wicks and Tom Ray.

In addition to the high jump, school records were broken in the pole vault by Bob Hanes at 14¼, in the 880 by Steve Stageberg in 1:55.1, in the discus and shot put by Mark Carter at 155-8 and 55-7 respectively, and in the javelin by Ray Wicks at 205-3½. Awarded the Dave Gilbert Trophy for excellence in track and field were Mark Carter, Al Tuttle and Steve Stageberg.

Under the direction of Mike Rose, the tennis team's third new coach in three years, the South Eugene netters compiled a respectable season record of 6 wins and 4 losses and went on in district to take third place behind Roseburg and Sheldon who tied for first. Doubles teams of Whit Fellers-Lewis Weber and Roger Bird -Jim Burke reached the district semi-finals, qualifying them for state, while sophomore doubles team Don Mickelson-Pete Barnhart made it to the quarter-finals. Weber and Fellers earned tenth spot in state by advancing to the quarter-finals.

Led by Miss Edna Glines, the inexperienced girls' team ended its season with a disheartening 0-8 record. In district, however, the picture changed as doubles team Sherry Robinson-Lois Eberhardt, who lost their first round, went on to take the consolation title.

Out of the Rough

Under the direction of Russel Geiseman, in his first year as coach, the 1965 golf team took district, placed fourth in state, and won six of seven matches, tying with the Oregon Frosh. The squad was sparked by the consistent shooting of Captain John Larsson, Rayl Evans, Cooper Chitty and Jud Guitteau. At the upstate tournament, the team placed third behind Corvallis and South Salem. The Axemen captured the District 5-A-1 championship with a team total of 297 as Guitteau placed first, shooting a 71. In the state meet in Portland, South finished behind Corvallis, Medford and South Salem. Larsson was appointed to the 1965 All-State Team with a 74-75-149.

Plummeting through downhill courses and picking their way through tight slalom runs, the ski team spent an exciting winter racing in Washington, Idaho and Oregon. South Eugene fielded two consistent teams under the watchful eye of Coach Elizabeth Reanier and Student Coach Tom Means. They excelled in both high school meets and in PNSA competition.

Leading the team this year were juniors Gary Papé and John Thompson. Papé had firsts in the Jere Gillis Cup, Alle Magge, Medford Invitational, and finally in the state meet at Mt. Bachelor. John was pushing him all season with a first in the Bend Invitational, a second at Medford, and thirds in the Alle Magge, AWS, and SEHS Invitational.

Team highlights of the season were the St. Patrick's Day Race at Mt. Ashland where South took eight of the top ten places with Carl Laney first; and the Dartmouth Cup state meet in which the A team took second, only 1.7 seconds behind Bend. The B team placed eighth.

FIREBUGS

Arsonists Cavort on Stage

Opening its 1964-1965 season, the South Eugene drama department presented an unusual play—"The Firebugs." Director Edward Ragozzino elaborated on the already-novel script by Max Frisch to provide his audience with many on and off-stage surprises.

Unique qualities were evident throughout the evening. Parked outside the school was a fire engine, complete with searchlight, hook and ladder, and uniformed firemen. "Fire Prevention Week" and "No Smoking" posters provided by the Eugene Fire Department decorated the auditorium lobby.

Once settled, the audience was startled by a blast of music from the rear of the auditorium. Down the center aisle came a combo of firemen marching to the offbeat music that set the tone for the entire play. Written especially for the production by District No. 4 Ford Foundation composer-in-residence Karl Kroeger, the score unified the scenes and gave the play unusual style.

"The Firebugs," comical on the surface, carries a moral—that constant hesitation ultimately leads to the inability to make any decision at all. Often described as a "learning play without a lesson," the drama concerns a man, Biedermann, who refuses to admit to himself that the peddlers under his roof are the arsonists who have burned down half the town. Confused and terrified, he goes to great lengths to offer them friendship in hopes that they will not destroy his home. In the final scene he even supplies them with the matches they use to detonate the gasoline barrels they stored in his attic.

Spurred to a frenzy by the words of their chief, the fireman chorus roars out its hatred of arsonists.

To pass the time while awaiting an alarm, firemen amuse themselves with books, cards and television.

Fire Chief listens to Biedermann scold his light-headed wife Babette.

DOERNBECHER TEA

Even the Beatles Were There

Introducing the Christmas season, the annual Doernbecher Tea brightened the holidays with the spirit of giving. Culminating months of preparation, the December tea provided girls with a chance to make the dreams of less fortunate children come true.

This year's dolls were no exception to the standards of originality long established for the traditional event. They ranged from shaggy Beatles to a prim Mary Poppins, and from Little Black Sambo and his tiger to a T-shirted teddy bear. Winning the class competition for the loveliest display was the sophomore presentation, "That Dreams May Come True." After the event, the dolls were given to children in various hospitals so that they might have a happier Christmas.

A social highlight of the year, the tea was an opportunity for girls and their guests to meet and chat while enjoying coffee, punch, and decorative Christmas cookies. Songs by the Madrigal Singers added an extra sparkle to the program.

Holiday in Axeland

Eugene's hopes for a "white Christmas" were washed away by floods, the worst to hit Oregon in recent years. The disaster caused much damage on the outskirts of Eugene and throughout the state, but did not hinder the gaiety and excitement of the holiday season for the South Eugene population.

A whirlwind of activities occupied students' time. Dressed in party clothes, dancers did the frug, stomp, and swim at "Peppermint Holiday," the sophomore-sponsored dance. Sue Pack and Cathi Collins sang songs from Christmas and folk music. Jolly Old Saint Nick, in the person of Dick Warlick, boosted holiday enthusiasm as he paraded through the halls. "Christmas in Axeland" tags were sold, halls were decorated with boughs and holly, and the A Cappella Choir carolled around the building. Finale was the beautiful Christmas assembly presented by the music department just before the long-anticipated holiday.

FLOWERING PEACH

And the Rains Came

Through a dream, a man is told by God that he must gather together his family with two of each living creature and build an ark to sustain them through a flood of 40 days and 40 nights. All other life is to be destroyed, but Noah has found grace with God and is to be saved.

This theme, the age-old story of Noah and the ark, is the basis for the contemporary drama, "The Flowering Peach" by Clifford Odets. Chosen as the second dramatic production of the year, the play dealt more with the conflicts within the family than with the religious implications of the story. Faced with a rare problem, the family bickers and quarrels—as each member is confronted by his own doubts.

Supporting the emotional pitch of the play were an overture, entr'acte and finale written by Ford Foundation composer-in-residence Karl Kroeger, and incidental music by David Young, senior. Utilizing the talents of the A Cappella Choir, school orchestra, and a backstage instrumental ensemble, the music added a dramatic impact to the superb direction and outstanding settings.

Beauty With a Beat

"The Man Who Invented Music," theme of this year's "Opus in Color," presented the opportunity for Tom Maddron to portray "Grandfather" and to tell his little granddaughter, played by Stacy Lehner, how he created instruments and music. The band presented examples of instrumental sounds as he told his story, then bounced into a program of marches, American folk music, and Broadway musical selections.

Directed by Robert Moblo, "Opus" offered two evenings of color and music. Special attractions included a ten-voice group singing "Bach with a Beat," the majorettes in a black-light routine, "Axe-idents" with singer Sue Pack performing special selections, and dancers Sue McCracken and Dan Collins presenting interpretations to a suite of American folk dances.

Creative genius blossomed as the student body turned its attention to the all-school election in March for 1965-66 officers. Huge imaginative posters, papering the walls of the hallways and the cafeteria, were splashed with everything from The Jolly Green Giant and Charlie Brown to life-size photographs of candidates. Name tags, suckers, noon-hour combos and bell-ringing student parades were all part of the whirlwind week that culminated in a two-thirds student body turn-out at the polls.

When the votes were counted, John Knudsen had been elected student body president; Mark Lutz, vice-president; Nancy Sundquist, secretary; and Hilda Bengston, historian. Becky Hemphill was elected president of Girls' League, and Tim Ferguson, president of Axemen's Council.

Charity Not a 'Rarity'

A record-breaking total of $2,191.77 was collected for the Eugene Hearing and Speech Center in South's annual Charity Drive. Winning again for the third straight year was the Class of 1965 which broke all previous records to raise a total of $1,035.55. Their prize was an 80-minute lunch period. Sophomores earned $840.32 and the juniors, $342.85.

Kicking-off the two-week drive was an all-school spaghetti feed in the cafeteria. During the following days, students worked on dime lines, cake, cookie, and pickle sales, a carnival, dances, car washes, and a rummage sale. An all-school date dance was the finale to the 15-day effort.

Chairman for the drive was student body vice-president Gary Papé. Swinging Into Spring

Blossoming out in spring attire, students ushered in April with the annual Girls' League-sponsored Print and Cord Week. Variety marked each day, and Monday started the week with the contest for the prettiest dress, loudest shirt and cutest couple. 'Clash Day' was the theme for Tuesday — stripes appeared with plaids, and prints and polka dots dotted the halls. Classes were plainly visible on Wednesday when seniors modeled yellow, juniors wore blue and sophomores turned out in green. Silence between the sexes was Thursday's theme, and girls forfeited their talk-tags to the boys who could make them speak. At the end of the day, Jim Tysell was named Mr. Irresistible for collecting the most tags, and Mary Jane Ferrante, Miss Mushmouth for having lost the most tags. Friday climaxed the week with the girl-ask-boy dance, "Stomping Through the Tulips." During the evening, Pam Schubert and Mark Carter were announced cutest couple, Carla Goodpasture was awarded a giant sucker for the prettiest dress, and Gary Papé won the contest for the loudest shirt.

SOUND OF MUSIC

"Do Re Mi"

In early May, the empty stage of South Eugene was filled with "The Sound of Music" as light broke through the stained glass windows of an Austrian abbey upon a group of chanting nuns.

Over 8,000 people witnessed another Ragozzino success and thrilled to the heartwarming story of the Trapp family. Everyone fell in love with the seven children, the simple and sincere Maria, and the dignified and restrained Captain Von Trapp. Lively supporting characters added to the spirit of the musical, as did such memorable songs as "My Favorite Things," "Sixteen Going on Seventeen," and "Climb Ev'ry Mountain."

Maria, counseled by the Mother Abbess to see more of the world, becomes the governess of the Trapp children. Bringing music back into their lives, she changes the children from regimented automatons to lively and talented imps. Maria is at first confused by the cold, military facade of the captain; but she soon falls in love with him. The children love her and approve of the marriage, but the future of the family is not secure. Hitler has annexed Austria, and Captain Von Trapp is called into the service of the Reich. Steadfastly loyal to his beloved Austria, the captain cannot bring himself to support the aggressors. As the curtain closes, the family is fleeing over the Alps to neutral Switzerland, aided by the nuns of Maria's abbey.

Playing four nights, the last two to standing ovations, the production was highlighted by excellent orchestration under Nathan Cammack. Stunning and colorful settings by David and Linda Sherman, bright costumes and lights, and spirited delivery created the wonderful world of the Trapp family and brought another Rodgers and Hammerstein hit to the South Eugene stage.

BACKSTAGE

Unsung Heroes

Outstanding drama is possible only after hours of painstaking work on the technical aspects of production. South's stage crew, under the direction of David Sherman, produced superb effects in settings, lighting, and sound while student-headed committees constructed costumes, hunted for props, and designed make-up—all contributing to the high quality of the season's shows.

SPRING ACTIVITIES

Springtime at South

Spring is that special time of year when everyone suddenly feels the urge to sprawl in the grass and eat picnic-style. Students at South were no exception. Girls blossomed in colored shifts, sundresses, and sandals, while the boys turned out in shorts of every description and footgear ranging from cowboy boots and tire-tread sandals to bare feet.

Banquets gave students enjoyable evenings with their fathers, as the Axemen's Council hosted the Father-Son Banquet in April and Girls' League sponsored a Father-Daughter get-together in May. Spring also presented a time for several club activities. A Mother-Daughter Style Show was an excellent opportunity for members of the FHA to model their creations. A bit of Hawaii was re-created when the newly-established Pin Club invited guests to its luau. The end of the school year was also marked by the "Earth Cry," presented by the drama department.

In the spring, the seven area high schools each select a princess to compete for queen of the annual Emerald Empire Round-up held in August at the Lane County Fairgrounds in Eugene. In addition to the usual qualifications, the princess must be an experienced horsewoman. From these seven, three girls are selected in June as princesses, and then one of the three is named queen in July. South Eugene was proud to have lovely senior Ruth Robbins chosen as queen, to reign over the three-day event and to represent Eugene at other rodeos throughout Oregon.

SENIORS

The High and the Mighty

President Jinx Davis

Secretary Salli Hendricks

Treasurer Jane Bossé

The year began in September and graduation seemed as far away as eternity. Nine months of work, responsibility, leadership, and fun lay in between and the Class of 1965 set out to make the most of it.

Seniors took the lead in student government, drama, athletics, clubs and activities, always with the originality and enthusiasm which became their trademarks for the year. A record number of seniors enrolled in Advanced Placement courses in hopes of obtaining college credit. South's new student body constitution was largely produced by seniors, who also initiated student opinion surveys and carried on the controversial 2.00 GPA debate.

It wasn't all serious study and work, however. Seniors decorated themselves and the cafeteria in wild attire to host the crazy "Come As You Ain't" dance in November. The annual class-competition Charity Drive in February brought out the seniors in full force. Hard work paid off, as they ended up with $1,035.55, the largest amount ever earned by one class.

The days between March and June whirled by, and seniors suddenly found themselves humming "Pomp and Circumstance" while they studied for finals. There was Baccalaureate, the senior breakfast, the "Once A Year Day" assembly, and, at last, the "big night." Wearing purple caps and gowns and holding their long-awaited diplomas, seniors sang the Alma Mater for the last time and tried to convince themselves that "commencement meant the beginning."

Miss America?

"Miss Oregon is poise, charm, warmth and laughter. She is bubbles, talent, beauty and softness. She is brains, ambition, joy, and throaty giggles."
So said the Eugene Register-Guard when South Eugene's Sue Pack was named Miss Oregon at the annual pageant at Seaside in July, 1965.
"Of course I cried," said Sue, "and I'll cry again — probably every time somebody mentions it. This is all so wonderful I may learn to enjoy crying!"
Sue, 1965 graduate of South Eugene, plans to attend law school after receiving her bachelor of arts degree. She has hazel eyes, an olive complexion, and is 5'5½" tall. Her special training includes three years of vocal lessons, seven years of piano, and she has played leads in many South Eugene and community drama productions. For her talent number, she sang "Happily Ever After" from the musical comedy, "Once Upon a Mattress."
Oregon eyes will be glued to television sets when Sue enters the Miss America Pageant in September in Atlantic City, N. J. Every good wish for her success will be with her.

Jeffrey Scott Wright

The tragic death of Jeff Wright in November of his senior year, result of a motor scooter accident, was a shock to the entire school. Jeff, 17, was a photographer for the 1965 Eugenean, a member of German Club, Junior Sports Car Club of America, Ski Club and Radio Club, and participated in the South Eugene tutorial system, helping students in chemistry and math. He was also active in the junior division of the Eugene Yacht Club, and was a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church youth group.

Jeff was known for his quiet sense of humor and willingness to help others. His death was a great loss to his many friends at South Eugene—students and teachers alike.

COMMENCEMENT

Once A Year Day!

The long-anticipated end of school started for seniors on Sunday with Baccalaureate in the auditorium. Monday and Tuesday, final days of school, were filled with term papers and final exams. Class Day, on Wednesday, opened with the senior breakfast in the cafeteria, a two-hour affair complete with speakers and musical entertainment. In the afternoon, the seniors marched into the auditorium, wearing their caps and gowns, to open the traditional assembly, this year entitled, "Let's Play Games, Sweet Charlotte," presented to the entire student body. And, at last, commencement, held outdoors behind the school Thursday evening. After the robes were returned, students from South, North Eugene and Sheldon turned up at the Erb Memorial Student Union on the University of Oregon campus for their all-night party, heading home by 3:30 a.m.

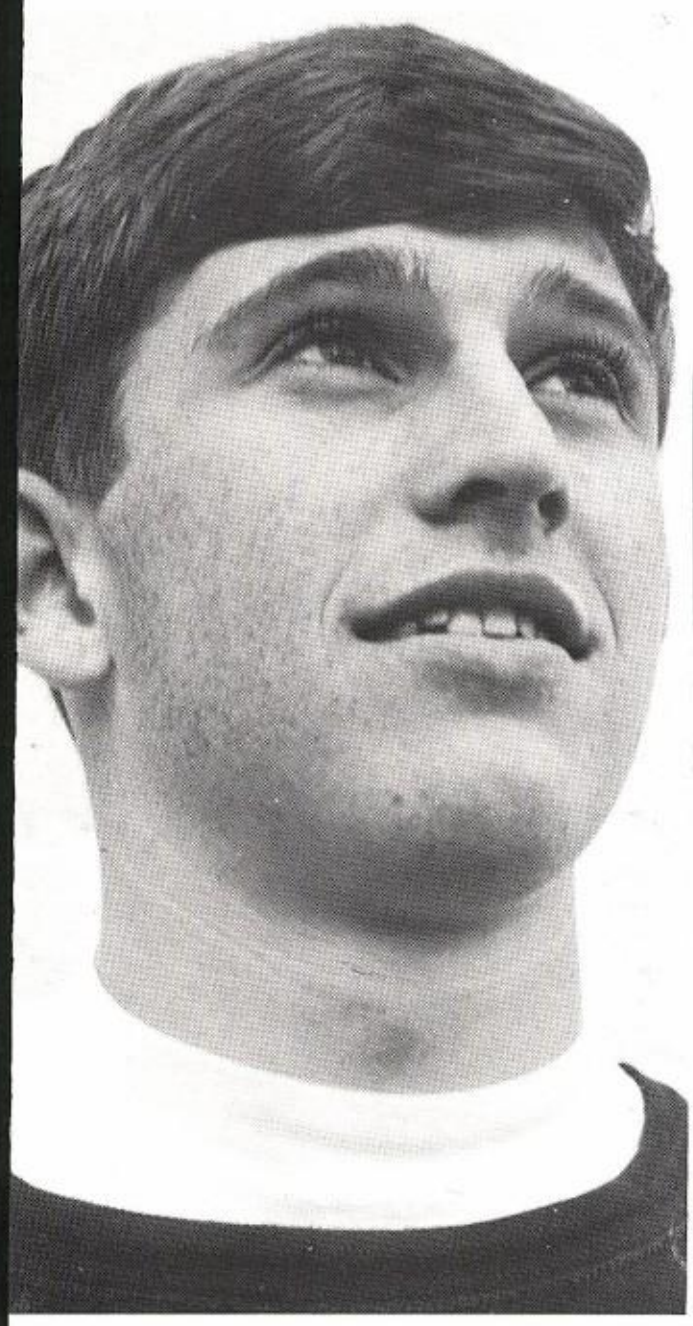
Mr. In-Between



President Ken Cypcar

Vice-President Patty Bowles

Secretary-Treasurer Mary Strand

With a total of 598, the juniors composed the largest class. Members made outstanding contributions to student government, academics, athletics, and social activities. Many served on various councils, as standing committee members, and as class leaders.

Comprising the majority of participants on many of the school's athletic teams, the junior boys literally got the ball rolling and demonstrated superior ability which helped the Axemen win district and state championships throughout the year.

Countless hours of hard work by dedicated juniors transformed the cafeteria into a Southern plantation for "Tara by Twilight," the May 1 Junior Prom, highlight of the year's social events. As the year drew to a close, juniors became involved with all commencement activities, helping with the many details necessary to produce a smooth-running show.

Prepared by their varied experiences, the juniors were ready to become the "big wheels" — the seniors of 1966.

In September the doors of South Eugene High opened to another year, welcoming a mass of green sophomores who hurried to get acquainted with the big building and its 40-acre campus. "Hello Week" and the "Big and Little Sister" picnic initiated the new class into the whirl of South Eugene activities.

With Mrs. Sevilla Berreman and Edgar Goodnough as class advisers, the sophomores sponsored "Peppermint Holiday," their first school dance. In December, the sophomore girls won the prize for the best doll display at the annual Doernbecher Tea. Class members who earned a GPA of 3.00 or better by the end of the first semester were invited to the annual "Smarty Party" hosted by the National Honor Society.

Throughout the remainder of the year, the sophomores continued to win their share of honors. They placed second in the Charity Drive, earning $840.32, and during Print and Cord Week tied the juniors with 92 percent of their members in class colors.

It's tough getting started!

Starting a savings account is just about as tough as that first dance. But it's great once you get going. Just start putting aside a few dollars out of each pay check. You will be surprised how quickly it adds up.

At Citizens Bank the interest rate is 4%, compounded quarterly. Come in now and open your own savings account.

1965 Eugenean

Dear Reader:

This year began as any other, with close to 1800 students arriving on the scene to spend nine months studying, learning, and having fun. For 28 of us, it was to mark the commencement of a fascinating experience, the beginning of a seemingly momentous task. We were to be the authors of a book—the 1965 Eugenean.

We started with sharpened pencils, clean dummy sheets, miles of unexposed film, and little or no understanding of how to build a book—but we were ready and willing to work. A new approach was our goal. Copy writers worked to discover new aspects of virtually every activity at South Eugene, while layout people aimed for the modern "magazine look." Photographers, harassed by innumerable picture orders, threatened to strike.

Features we are proud of in this book are the magazine-style headlines, the larger color section, and the emphasis on candid closeup shots. A focus on the faces that make up the school was developed as the unifying idea, carried out in the introduction and on divider pages. Close-up pictures of the teachers in their classrooms added to this theme.

We learned that working on a year book means more than just creating — it means cooperating. As problems arose, which could only be solved through adaptations, alterations, and compromises, individuals became a team under the guidance of our adviser, Mrs. Alyce Sheetz.

We hope you will find the 1965 Eugenean a valuable record of 1964-65, a book of memories that will be treasured a lifetime.
